Guerillas Paving For Knock-Out Blow RED ARMIES DEPLOYING

Shanghai, June 18.

Three columns of the People's Liberation Army, composed mostly of former guerilla forces, have intensified "softening up" operations behind the Nationalist lines in the Southern provinces, as a new Communist five-pronged drive from the North loomed ahead in dealing a knock-out to the tottering Nationalist government.

This was revealed here today by an unofficial Communist source, which said that the three columns in question were the Fukien-Kwangtung-Kiangsi border column, the Kwangtung-Kiangsi-Hunan border column and the Kwangsi-Yunnan-Kweichow border column.

These were officially formed and incorporated in the People's Liberation Army on January 1 this year.

With Formosa in the hands of Moscow's henchmen, Hong Kong shall be as safe as it was before the Pacific War. If the Britishers and Americans do not care that they will remain in the camps for prisoners-of-war for indefinite periods, other vested interests are certainly not concerned. If history does repeat itself, such interests will rejoice. Our splendid tradition is that Collaboration with the enemy chall not be a crime.

Big shots under the enemy may be rewarded for "underground activities" if ever Anglo-Americans shall again Win the war. Then we shall have Occupation Land Transaction Ordinance as our, blueprint to safeguard the illgotten wealth of future enemy's friends and favourités. All is not well, that ends well.

Then what is use of all these preparations—requisitions, cruitings of defence forces and building of airfields?

VIEWPOINT OF THE FORCES

CHINA MAIL LTD.

"Sunday. Herald" publishes a letter today from a serviceman who is not impressed by our recent edion the subject of His comwelfare. ments may or may not be typical, but we are glad to note his independent stand and unwillingness to accept anything savouring of charity. In fairness to ourselves we must firmly rebut his suggestion that such articles and comment are "a stunt to tickle the jaded palates of Hong Kong readers as a change from civil war news." Our intention at least is good, even if the results we achieve in this context are not impressive.

The correspondent claims that the man in uniform here does not want to mix with society, he accepts the absence of home life, and doubts whether there can in fact be any real home life in such an overcrowded city. SUNDAY, JUNE 19, 1949.

We rode without talking until the so-called "temple" of Rani-Ra came into view on the edge of town. It was a large brown, frame building with a wide, imposing entrance, the doorway of which was ornamented with crudely drawn mystic symbols.

I pushed the door open and we walked in. A comely brunette in a black satin robe took our coats and, with a gesture, indicated a room to our right. I took Nancy's arm and led her into it. The room was dimly lighted by a single candle which flickered atop a brass standard.

I stumbled once on the heavy carpet, then guided Nancy to two chairs. We sat there, staring into the gloom at the people about us. I didn't recognise any of them.

A small, slender figure in a flowing white gown drifted through a door and seemed to float toward the centre of the room. The girl's face was thin and drawn, but pretty, and her eyes were closed. The turban which concealed her hair was white, fastened with a single large green stone which gleamed like a great eye in the candle-light. She pivoted in the centre of the room, faced us, became motionless. Scarcely breathing, she stood there several minutes, then her lips began to move. I could hardly catch the words at first, but her voice gradually became stronger and I realised she was uttering some sort of oriental chant. It had a terrific effect upon the women seated near me. Several began to sob. and one of them threw herself to her knees and kissed the hem of the girl's robe.

"Sudi Bey the Oom comes soon," the girl announced in a dreamy tone. "Let those who seek the Knowing One make ready!" Without opening her eyes, she drifted backward to a dark wall and pulled a heavy drape which had obscured a second doorway. "Come!" the girl commanded, her volce deepening to a husky whisper. "Come to the presence of Sudi Bey!"

A gong boomed and the door swung open. Everyone arose and I put my arm around Nancy's waist as we moved toward the second room. There were no lights within and the dark-ness was impenetrable. I stood in the doorway, hesitating, until someone touched my hand and led me into the darkness. I tightened my arm around Nancy, pulling her with me. Hands pushed me into a chair, and I felt Nancy being guided into a chair beside

There was the sound of bodies moving about us, then quiet settled over the room, and I heard nothing except breathing. Abruptly, a soft light began to glow, becoming gradually brighter, and I discerned the figure of a man seated on a carved throne-like chair at the far end of the room. He was dressed entirely in black—turban, robe, shoes—and his round, dark-skin-ned face seemed in repose. As the light became stronger, his eyes opened and looked at us.

"Greetings, O Sudi Bey!" a voice

The mystic's lips moved. There is no God but Alli-and Mohad is his Prophet."

"Amen!" someone echoed.

"Rani-Ra is the Beloved of Mohad," the mystic intened, "and this is the temple of the Knowing One! Those seeking the wisdom of Alli must join their bodies their souls, and their thoughts. When that has been done.
The Call shall come to the faithful."

His eyes slid slowly shut and the lights began to dim. I noticed that our chairs were arranged in a circle facing the throne, and that about a dozen men and women constituted the congregation. They were solemnly joining hands and bowing their heads in prayer. I took the hand of the woman on my right. I couldn't see who she was. By that time the room was black again.

We sat there a long time. Occasionally I caught the faint sound of someone moving, and once the woman whose hand I was holding jerked restlessly. I strained my eyes into the darkness but couldn't see a thing. There was a muffled cough, a sigh, the creak of a chair, but gradually even the sound of breathing disappeared, and the room seemed to be getting bigger, cooler, and emptier.

"Nancy?" I whispered.

"Shh!" Her fingers squeezed mine warningly.

My right hand began to go to sleep. The woman whose hand I held hadn't moved a muscle for minutes. Cautiously, I flexed my fingers, hoping she wouldn't misunderstand. There was no response. Her fingers remained inert within mine, almost as though she were—

A chill touched my spine. "Nancy!"

"Shh, Bill-!"

"I'm tired of this noncense!" I said loudly, releasing her hand. I also let go of the woman's hand and felt it drop away from mine, making a faint noise as it struck the side of her chair. "We're getting out of here!"

"Bill, please! You'll-"

I found my cigarette lighter and snapped on its dim flame. It soon went out, but I had seen enough. The circle of chairs was empty, I The only person in the room besides Nancy and me, was the strange woman whose hand I held—and her throat had been cut from ear to ear!

CHAPTER II

Nancy screamed. I clicked the lighter frantically, then realised it was out of fluid and began searching my pockets, found a folder of matches, tore two off and struck them together. As soon as they flared, I located the light switch, tushing to it and flipping it.

Nancy was standing in front of the dead woman, her blue eyes wide and one hand pressed against her mouth. "Bill!" she gasped. "It's Siella Lear-and she's dead!"

Fear and anger seized me. Everyone had slipped away and we were alone with a dead woman.

"Don't touch her!" I warned as Nancy leaned toward the corpse. "See if you can find a phone!"

I realised suddenly that the draps which concealed the first door had probably fallen back into place and, impatiently, I retraced my steps and opened the door. Nancy gave a glad cry and rushed into my arms, trembling as though chilled.

"Oh, Billi" she sighed. "I thought you'd left me alone with..."

"Did you find the phone?"

"There isn't any."

"Take the car, then, and get the sheriff!" I handed my key-ring to her. "Hurry, dear!"

She ignored the keys. "Why can's we both go?"

"I want to see if anyone is upstairs,"
"Why?"

"Can't you see what a spot we're in? What do you think the sheriff is going to say when he finds out I was holding her hand when she was Rilled?"

"But, why?"

ANTIQUE RECORDINGS

There is a fascination, an element of pride of possession in securng a first-edition of, say, Dickens or Thackeray. By the same token, there is an element of pride in possessing some records of some of the famous singers anl artistes of a by-gone age.

I do not concede — and I have said this before—that the Golden Age (so called) was productive of any better operatic artistes and singers than is the case nowadays. The adherents of the former theory quoto the de Reszke Brothers, Patti, Nilsson, Tamegno, De Luca, Homer, Galli-Curci, Mary Garden and many others as being quite unsurpassed by any singers of today. Is this so? I quote but a few names which spring readily to mind—Glannini, Lemnitz, Cebotari, Berger, Caniglia, Gigli, Ralf, Bjorling, Schiotz, Schoeffler, Teschmascher, Wittrisch and Perrhas. I stop here, since it is no place of mine to catalogue all the famous present-day singers. But suffice it that these few names along can hold their own-and more-with any of the fabulous legendary figures of the Victorian era.

In the early part of the present century, Edison invented the first phonograph, thus setting in train one of the largest of the world's industries (believe it or not!), the production of gramophone records. Although the perfection of recording music, whether by voice or instrument, was probably not reached until the early 1930's or so, nevertheless Edison's pioneer efforts have left us many reminders of great artistes. From this point of view alone, it is good that such examples do exist, even though the technical deficiencies of the recording apparatus give but a poor idea of the true talent.

In the early days of recording, the recording was made accoustically. whereas now, of course, electrical recording is the only accepted means. The artiste sang into a large tin funnel, whilst the vibrations of his voice actuated a needle which caused impressions to be made on the matrix. Later, this matrix, or master record, is used to manufacture the actual records.

Fantastic Prices

Of these early recordings, Caruso's and Galli-Curci's are still to be had quite easily, whilst some of McCormack's pre-electric pressings are still listed in the H.M.V. catalogues. There are those who collect such records for the sake of possession, and indeed some of the merer records of great operatic stars of the so-called "Golden Age" fetch fantastic prices among connoisseurs. I possess one or two such of Caruso and McCormack, but cannot help feeling that such pressings would be better withdrawn. As inanimate curios, they are certainly valuable, but as records, they give but little idea of the true beauty of the voice of the artiste. Apart from the nasal quality of the voice, the orchestral accompaniments sound terrible.

Before the War, H.M V. made some very interesting experiments with, old Caruso recordings. The old pre-electric record was played over and rerecorded by modern - methods. Then the orchestra was eliminated (for which much thanks!) and a new accompaniment super-imposed on to the sound-track of the voice. There can be no doubt this experiment proved highly successful, the result being something like an adequate representation of Caruso's voice. For some reason, this idea was not pursued very far; possibly this may have been due to the purists, who argued that a policy of "let well alone" should be observed. Today, of course, the technique of recording has reached as near perfection as is humanly possible. The pianoand organ particularly have always.

factory dement about such pressings until about 1935 By dint of much patience and experiments, however, the recording engineers gradually solved this problem, and present recordings are notable four their faithful reproduction of this particular instrument.

Interesting Process

The actual recording of music is a very interesting process to watch and I was lucky enough to see and hear Yehudi Menhuin record the Elgar Violin Concerto for H.M.V. at their Hayes studios in Middlesex before the War. The position of each section of the orchestra is first carefully determined in order to preserve a perfect balance of sound. The Brass Section is placed furthest away from the microphone, with percussion at theback. Strings and wood-wind are positioned at the front, since the carrying-capacity of their volume is less than in the other sections of the orchestra.

The soloist takes his place in front, and the microphone adjusted carefully. As the Concerto began, red lights were switched on round the studio to denote that recording was in progress. Before the actual recording, several experiments had previously been made, and varying positions and volumes tried so as to achieve a result as nearly perfect as possible.

All during the performance engineers and technicians were constantly adjusting the apparatus to ensure a maximum fidelity of reproduction. This picture is indeed a different affair from the early days Progress in this respect has been a remarkable thing, and the strides that have been made in the last 30 years or so quite astonishing.

pletely in that he has the possibility of perfect reproduction at his fingertips. Whether the next decade will further innovations, I do not know; probably the next step will be the commercial marketing of longplaying records, so that a whole work can be heard by the mere turning-over of one record. The R.C.A. Victor Co. are already making progress with this

SUNDAY

Although I usually devote space on the Sunday evening programmes almost exclusively to the Symphony Concert, I am going to find space to mention an additional feature this week. At 8.15 p.m. there is to befor 15 minutes—a recital by Lily Pons, the American coloratura soprano. Her programme includes:-

Alma Mia ..... Handel Allesandra ..... Handel Mireille Waltz Song ..... Gounod

Handel at any time is worth hearing at all costs, and add the voice of Lily Pons to grace the music-if grace be 1. Sir George Downing, an ambassador needed-and you have a programme of unusual interest. Known better in America as the pocket-soprano, Lily Pons is married to Andre Kostelanetz, the orchestra leader and conductor. Some . 15 years :ago, Lily Pons made her first (and, I believe, only) attempt at a film called "I, dream too much". Quite why she has not made more films is something of M-mystery, since, allied to her exceptional voice, is a quality of charm which would lead me to suppose that she would have proved photogenic. Apparently not however, since I do not recall any more films other than

At 9.45 p.m. the Sunday evening. Symphony Concert comes on the air;" when the programme is to be:-Symphony No. 2 in D. Minor

-Sibelius Ballade for Piano & Orchestra

(Soloist: Kathleen Lang) Garden of Faud ..... Bax There is little doubt that Sibelius', name will go down in history as one of the the greatest of 20th century composers. His technique is closely allied with the classic masters such as Beethoven, Brahms and Schubert. He concedes little to popular taste, the outstanding characteristic of his compositions being a forthright honesty of conception. Although it would be untrue to describe his music as difficult of absorption, nevertheless a first hearing requires finer concentration if the full import of his music is to be adequately appreciated. Faure's Ballade is a composition typical of the French School, writtens not so much in concerto-form as in grand chamber-music style, with the pianoforte being given every prominence. It is a charming "miniatureconcerto," if one is allowed this rather contrary description. Sir Arnold Bax's suite "Garden of Faud" had its debut (if my memory is correct) at the Proms, in the early 1930's. It is essentially a tone-poem written in such form as to illustrate most clearly the composer's mastery of the technique of orchestration.

MONDAY

At 9.10 p.m. Concerto Hour-another well-established feature which I hope will not lamentably fade away too soon -brings a performance of Beethoven's No. 2 Pianoforte Concerto. The soloist is Arthur Schnabel, with the London Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Sir Malcolm Sargeant.

Beethoven's first and second concertos appear to derive from Mozart and Haydn, although this statement must not be construed as constituting the slightest suspicion of any plagiarism. It is the case, however, that up to the publication of the 3rd Concerto. Beethoven appeared to be treading carefully, and eschewed any great departure from the classic traditions of his predecessors. The gentle opening movement succeeded by a noble forte. in the second is a typical Mozartian conception.

TUESDAY

I have little space left except barely to mention that at 9.55 p.m. there is to be a performance of Brahms Trio in A for Plano, Clarinet and Cello.

WEDNESDAY

British Concert Hall Series tonight brings performances of Overture in D. ..... Handel Suite No. 8 Carmen ..... Bizet Symphony No. 4 Vaughath . Williams

Etzie, the 80-year-old she elephant of the Rio zoo, is dead. She had been ill for some time, and once she was so weak she fell down and could not get up again. Because she could only under-stand English, in a country where everybody speaks Portuguese, she could not understand what was happening to her. Nor could she understand, what that big iron arm with the huge dangling chain was for.

It was a crane to put her back on her feet again. Her legs were so weak from her illness she could no longer lift her six and a half ton weight.

Soon the zoo will have two elephants to take her place. Two ten-year-old ones were bought in Calcutta and are on their way to Rio now. They are very tame and have already been trained to carry children on their backs and trunks.

But before they can take Etzie's place, they will have to learn a new trick—one that Etzlo did and which was everybody's favourite.

Etzie, in an apron, would sit down at a table. A waiter would bring her bread, some bananas and a bottle of femonade.

She would eat and drink these with great dignity. Then she would reach into her apronpocket with her trunk and take out a hig metal disc which was out a big metal disc which was supposed to be money, and pay the waiter.

With a gracious gesture of her trunk she would wave away the change—a tip for the waiter. (From Jane Braga, Rio de Janeiro).

monkey hobody loves.

A few days ago an amateur photographer bought her in a Chicago poultry shop. Perhaps the chickens disorientated her a little, for when her new owner took her home she promptly bit him.

The enraged owner went to hospital to get some repairs done, and on his return took Alice out for a ride to a convenient lake, shot her with a .22 pistol and pushed her in the Water.

Two days later Alice turned up on the outskirts of the town with u alight flesh wound in her shoulder and electrified two telephone repairers in a passing truck by making the conventional signal of the hitch-hiker.

One of the repair men fortunately knew a thing or two about monkeys. He stopped the truck, grabbed a piece of chocolate cake. A moment later he hoisted Alice, munching contentedly, into the truck. At a nearby police station, the recent owner of the meandering monkey informed the police with some asperity that he'd disposed of her once and that was enough. So Alice, with police escort, was conveyed to the lost dog department Here she is living a life of quiet luxury in a private cage with a steady diet of bananas. "(From Kay Murray New York).

One day a mother cat with two little kittens went into the garden of a beautiful house.

The mother cat saw a nest on a tree and climbed the tree, looked into the nest and came down. The kittens asked, "What is inside the nest, dear mother?"
The mother answered, "Eggs, dear kittens," "Are eggs good?" asked the kittens. Mother cat replied, "Eggs are good, but birds are better. We will wait."

After a month later, the mother cat went with her two little kittens to the garden again and the mother cat climbed up the tree, looked into the nest and then came down again and said

H.M. The King

The official opening by H.M. the King of Colonial Month in the United Kingdom will be heard by BBC listeners all over the world in the General Oversons "Service on Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. The speech will be preceded, at 7.20 p.m. by a commentary describing the function at Church House and, if possible, the scene at the central exhi-

'Colonial Journey'

A recording of H.M. the King's speech will introduce a special feature programme 'Colonial Journey,' linking up the colonies by radio.

Produced by Leonard Cottrell, 'Colonial Journey' will try to paint a picture in sound of all the colonies, the way in which the peoples live, and the individual atmosphere that is peculiar to each colony. In the words of the producer filmself, 'listeners will travel in imagination on a radio journey from West to East. The first port of call will be the George Cross Island of Malta, now engaged on an enormous task of reconstruction.

'From Malta to Cyprus is a relatively short journey. Much is happening today in this lovely island, the legendary birthplace of the goddess Aphrodite, the fortress of the crusading knights, and the home of a fine peasant people....

'From' the Mediterranean to Africa is a natural step, first to West Africa, to a cocoa plantation on the Gold Coast, and thence to Nigeria for a soundpicture of the 900-year-old city of Kano, home of the proud Hausa people. Eastwards again, a long hop across the Indian Ocean takes us to Singapore next—that great port and trading centre which has made a phenomenal recovery since the war.... From the coast of China we move to the Fiji Islands, where, against a romantic South Seas background, we hope to hear of interesting new developments in industry, agriculture, and native education. Then, to provide a vivid contrast, we leap across the South Atlantic to the Falkland Islands, base for the Antarctic expeditions, where we may hear from the crew of the "John Briscoe," British Antarctic ship which recently arrived there .... 'Now we move North Exstwards to the West Indies....take a look at Jamaica and British Gulans, before paying our last call at Bermuda, that lovely Atlantic outpost, so vital in war. as the base from which Lend-Lease aircraft were flown to Britain .... and so back to Britain."

General Overseas: Tuesday, 11.15 p.m. and Wednesday, 6 p.m.

Up the garden path

Does Mr. Izzard, who writes so authoritatively on gardens, realise that clubfoot in scakale can be greatly relieved, if not completely cured, by rubbing the swollen roots with a warm tisane made of equal parts of friar's balsam and liquorice? We doubt it.

Is he aware that the caulipot, the amazing new two-in-one vegetable which is proving to be such a boon to lazy restaurateurs, is easily obtained by poking a cauliflower seed into a potato's eye and forcing the tuber under gentle heat by covering it with an elderspread, which, in its turn, is easily obtained by sending an eiderdown and a bedspread to the laundry and afterwards tacking together the mangled remains? Nothing is less likely.

Not to mince words, does this big, bullying horticulturist, who is forever ordering his timid students about like dogs, crying harshly to them, "Mulch the beans without delay!" "Ply the hoe busily!" and "Plant sugar cane now!" realise that radishes, when sown in succession as he rashly advises, may easily wilt and die when they see nothing but other radishes, with the same dreary little red faces, coming up all around them? Just think of your own feelings when you look at the people who live near you. Sow radishes at random, we say, light-heartedly scattering the seeds; among the damned turnips, and you will not only be defying a strict disciplinarian, and a haughty expert - in itself a pleasure - but you may grow a radnip (or turnish) into the bargain.

As for you, Izzard, stop leaning on that hectoring pen. Get out into the open, man, and let us see you doubletrench some of those loamy great spits with a correctly held spade.

The Call Of The Fame

Only 250 indiscriminating tourists are to be allowed to spend their dospised money in picturesque Dementia this year, which is indeed fortunate for the remainder, for of all people the Dementians are the most lumpy, dull, inartistic, hairy-kneed, mercenary, and up to date.

Dementia, which is justly, famed for its unpleasing architecture and poisonous drinking water, has long been the favourite holiday resort for the secentric English who revel in its quaint old quarries and slag heaps, its innumerable little pensions with full board, its obsequious and crafty headwaiters, its souvenir gift shops stuffed with fretwork pipes, and its plain, bad cooking which reminds them of home.

The Dementions themselves are little bigger than broad dwarfs, and judged by ordinary standards are practically unmarriageable. Yet there are always more than enough of them, and the birth-rate is increasing.

The national costume of the men is a black alpaca coat, pinstripe trousers, and button boots, often with a napkin draped over the arm. However, on the slightest provocation they will don red velvet shorts and a green velour hat and yodel in their bare knees, fit to wake the dead. Their fee for doing: this is five Dementian pestos (roughly 101/2d.), but the President himself charges as much as 10 Demoutian pestos if he thinks that he can get

The national beverage of Dementia is fermented garlic sweetened with saccharin and highly scenied with noxious. local herbs. A small art glassful costs anything from 15 to 75 pectos, according to the customer's appearance, and is excessively distastoful.

Speaking at the opening of a Bavarian export show recently, Bavarian Minister for Economic Affairs, Dr. Seidel, stated that Britain was Germany's chief rival in the world export battle. "For the good of both parties" added Dr. Seidel, "it is necessary that both countries define their spheres in the export trade and keep to them. Export or die was Britain's policy — now it must be ours,"

Meanwhile, however, Germany is not waiting until the various trade "spheres" are defined. All articles exhibited at the Bavarian Fair are now on their way to the New York Trade Fair. Among the samples are household ornaments, furniture and leather goods.

Improved Quality Of Service Ahead PROBLEMS

London, June 17.

An improved quality of service to colonial territories was predicted by the Colonial Secretary, Mr. Arthur Creech Jones, when he spoke at today's final session of the Conference of Colonial Supplies Officers.

nearly a fortnight, these Colonial Supplies Officers, together with officials of the Colonial Office and other Government departments, have been discussing the Colonies' main protary alreraft have proved only This is need for colonial territories to have access to the necessary supplies for general economic stability and welfare, and the need for ensuring that these supplies should make the maximum contribution towards the solution of the dollar problem.

> The world supply position of steel, cement, machinery, motor vehicles, foodstuffs, textiles, fetcetera, has been reviewed in detail at the conference, and there have been meetings between the delegates and representatives of the Federation of British Industries, the Chairman of the Cotton Board, and with leading representatives of British motor manufacturers.

Office regards the conference as a great success, Mr. Creech Jones added; "This nation yields to living, enlightenment, service and responsibility. The territories cannot receive the bulk of their needs unless they have facts about economics cannot be slurred over.

IN GERMANY Disquieting Sign In American Zone

Frankfurt, June 17.

An American Federation of Labour representative today reported much disquieting evidence that German officialdom in the United States zone is heavily loaded with former Nazis.

The labour representative, Dr. Joseph Mire, of the A. F. of L. Office at Madison, Wisconsin, gave his report to the Military Government after an investigation of the German administration structure in the zone.

According to the report, a survey in December, 1948, in the State of Hesse revealed that 40 per cent of all employees in the State's public service were ex-

Nazi Party members. The Hesse Ministries of Finance, Agriculture and Culture and Education, the report charged, are more than 50 per cent Nazi. In Wuertlemberg-Baden, according to statistics available in October last year, 47 per cent of all State ministry workers were former Party members.

The Mire report suggests that these percentages may be even higher now, since many former Nazis have been cleared by the courts and have returned to offi-Governor Ingram Stainbeck's cial jobs in the past six months. tion. In this article, the famous war-time Minister of Food contests the Socialist view that the pentlemen in Whitehall really does know better what is good for people than the people know themselves; criticises the Food Ministry's increased actipities; and suggests that, divested of some of in studentions, it should be amalgamated with the Ministry of Apriculture.

the nationalisation of the means of the nation, into the position of 250 families in the United Kingof production, distribution and exchange; consequently they are committed to a very wide extension of Government management | of our industrial effort and, I think inevitably, of our private lives. Political wisdom or opportunism compels them, at election times, to make all sorts of minor conce sions; but they do it at a sacrifice of principle.

Mr. Douglas Jay I believe to be a smeere Socialist thinker and he does not funk his fences. He puts his philosophy fairly and Equarely before the public in his book, "The Socialist Case." There, speaking of all food, he says: First, housewives as a whole cannot be trusted to buy all the right things where nutrition and health are concerned. This is really no more than an extension of the principle according to which the bousewife herself would not trust a child of four to select a week's purchases. For, in the case of nutrition and health, just us in the case of education, the gentleman in Whitehall really does know better what is good for people than the people know themselves. Mr. Jay is the Government economic expert, and his views. therefore, are likely to carry much weight. He and the Chancellor of the Exchequer both believe in a controlled and planned economy.

Of course it costs money to manage in detail the affairs of a country, and it will probably cost more money when done by a Department than when it is done by tens of thousands of private individuals looking after their own interests. and, therefore, exercising a wise restraint over what they spend. In former days the Treasury was always exercising a moderatng inducace over the limitations and 'growth of the Departments of State. All these schemes were developed by the Ministry of Food because somebody had, to do them. They are indeed a very stimulating and worth-while part of the job of any Minister. They are so successful in their social benefits as to give him a reward for his very trouble-

Farming And Imports There is needed within the Government better integration of those sections concerned, with the producky, the distributor, the consumer of our foodstuffs and our overseas trade.

The Ministry of Agriculture must take its rightful place, and reconcile the current contradictory policies of these two Government Departments which encourage, for example, the horticultural industry to grow substantial individual crops and then cause part of them to be destroyed as a result of large imports of similar crops from abroad. It is worth considering whether, in order to reduce the cost of this vast machinery of government, it would not be better to amalgamate the Ministry of Agriculture under one Ministorial head we tities can economically be produced at home, and for which the Government is prepared to ensure for them guaranteed prices.

Influence Big Four

By WALTER LIPPMANN

This meeting of the Big Four has been remarkable for its lack of big talk, big plans, and big gestures.

For it is quite evident that the Big Four have shrunk in influence and power as the war hasreceded into the past,

Even if now they were able to agree among themselves their decisions would no longer shape the future of Europe and of Asia as, nt Teheran, Yalta, and Potsdam, it was once believed the big Powers could.

Perhaps it was from the beginning an illusion to think that the big victors could agree on a settiement for the whole world. Perhaps it was an even greater illusion to think that, if they did and then dictate or determine the shape of things to come.

This down-grading of the Big Four is. I venture to think, the principal reason why the meeting in Paris arouses so little hope and excites so little fear.

. Once it was believed that Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt were deciding the destiny of man-· kind.

Almost no one feels that Vyshinsky, Schuman, Bevin, and Acheson are deciding the destiny of mankind. The dictatorship of the Big Four, about which so much was said at the end of the war, has not happened. It broke down completely: during the cold war. It was supposed to be followed by the division of the world among two super Powers, struggling to decide whether the capital of mankind would be Moscow or Washington. This conception of the future has been dissolving—rather dramatically during the past year. It is increasingly plain that no one Power is going to dominate, the world, that no two Powers. can divide the world, and that the political influence of both Russia and America, which was so greatly inflated in 1945, is being de-

It is now certain that despite the unconditional surrender it will, be impossible for the victors to dictate the pence treaties with Germany and Japan, and that by one process or another the settlements will be negotiated with the Germans and the Japanese.

Moreover, in almost the whole of Asia and in most of Europe there is beneath all the intricate and confusing events one combot current which is causing the dissolution of control by the big

Not only the old colonial-cmpires, but also the more recent post-war spheres of influencethe Russians in Eastern Europa, the Americans in China-cire caught in this tremendous current of resistance and rebellion by the native populations against distant and alien big Powers.

The over-simplified formula of the cold, war, that all the world will go "democratic" or will go "Communist"—is, it seems to me, a fallace which must be discarded before we can hope to see at all, much less see clearly, the course of events and our part in them.

ATLANTIC TREATY UNDER RED FIRE

Rome, June 17. Communist and neo-Fascist Deputies today joined forces in an attempt to delay Italy's ratifica-

The debate in the Chamber of Deputies-where the full force of Communist opposition is expected to be mobilised-is unlikely to take place before mid-July, despite the Government's pleas that ratification be treated as a matter of urgency.

Luxembourg, June 17. The British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, wants more publicity for the social and cultural work of the Consultative Council of Western Union.

At the end of the first session of the Council's sixth meeting here tonight it was understood that Mr. Bevin made a plea for more publicity when reports on the work of the Sub-Committees on social and cultural matters are taken up.

M. Robert Schuman, French Foreign Minister, told reporters after the meeting that the discussion of military matters was reserved for tomorrow. Mr. Paul-Henri Spaak, the Belgian Prime Minister and Foreign Minister, said: "We tackled the easiest questions first."

Mr. Bevin, it is understood, reminded his colleagues that the work of the Consultative Council, under the terms of the Brussels treaty, is not exclusively military or political.

Their purpose is also to create a real bond between the peoples of their countries.

The cultural report, which explained that the five Powers had, in the past year, exchanged education experts and tenchers, indicated that courses for Government officials are planned for later this year and next Joe's earliest memories are of the showground, where his family owned a boxing booth. He recalls old Jem Mace standing outside the booth in top hat and frock coat trying to entice the crowds inside.

When Beckett was old enough he went into the booth. "It was a tough school," he says, "but we soon learned how to defend ourselves. We had to."

He had to learn to cover up against all comers-fresh, energetic young men anxious to try their strength, and possibly knock the count. As the referee reachhim out. At the same time he would wear his opponents down.

Although she is to be a republic, India is still in the Commonwealth and Tibet is inclined towards seeking Indian protection but she would very much like to know what would be the immediate reactions of Russia and China, Russia's attitude is the easiest to foretell.

There would be no immediate difference but just a gradual intensification of Soviet efforts to peasants who now look upon the Dalai Lama as a Heaven-sent King and the other Lamas as lesser gods. The Tibetan way of life is an anothema to Russia, and the Kremlin would give a great deal to break the power of the

The Chinese altitude is harder to foresee.

Chinese Attitude

It largely depends on the power the Chinese Communists have over- the peasants in the surfounding districts. The Dalai Lama is the spiritual ruler of a large area of Sinking and Chinese Turkestan which borders on Tibet.

If his power has not been broken then nothing will be done except to induce him to take his "advisers" from the Chinese areas of his "Spiritual Kingdom" when he comes of age in 195; and, through these, hope to dominate the country gradually But, if the Communists have real ly a tight hold on the area, then there is a possibility of border raids and even annexation of outlying districts and eventually the whole country.

Communism is coming nearer to the borders of India every day and with every success of the Communists in China, Aiready India is fully awake to the possibilities of Communist infiltration through Nepal and Bhutan should the Communists overrun the whole of China which seems very likely at the moment, And, with the likelihood of having to guarantee the integrity of Tibet, her military and diplomatic responsibilities increase daily.

It is perhaps with these responsibilities in mind, that Pandit Nehru, at a recent Press conference on his return from London, hotly defended India's remaining in the Commonwealth

He stressed the fact that India's Army, Navy and Air Force are based on the British model and that when their strength is vital to India in the present state of world affairs it would be the height of foolishness to cut her-self off from the source of her armaments and from the valuable military advice which Britain is able and willing to give.

Beauty In The Hot Weather:

CASE OF THE VANISHING FACIAL MAKE-UP

By CLAUDIA

Of all our hot weather beauty problems perhaps the most persistent and exasperating is the "vanishing" quality of make-up.

We go out with a perfectly good and carefully applied make-up but alas! by the time we reach our appointment, we seem to have lost it on the way. At least, there is very little left to show for all our trouble. And when some kind friend comments "my dear, how hot you look," that adds the final straw!

pearing for lengthy periods and doing the whole job over again... much too exhausting for this much too exhausting for this weather. Some even start off with an extra thick make-up in the hopes that, being more of it, it will last longer.

None of these methods, are in the least satisfactory, for beauty, like any sound business, must be built on a firm foundation. The choice of the right foundation is the answer to this problem of the makenummer make-up. A light make-up on the right foundation is the

Each year brings fresh research and improved or new foundat'ons for different types of skin, and in hot weather, liquid or solid foundations usually prove the most suitable.

while a cream foundation is more likely to melt into the skin, a liquid or "cake" foundation has the advantage of staying on the surface of the skin much longer.

Liquid foundations are blended to suit individual skin textures, from the fine and dry, to the more coarse and oily. There is no need to fear that these lotion foundations will dry up the skin, for reputable manufacturers take great care to provide a suitable formula for energy skin.

fun. Can it be cultivated?-S. L.

There are a number of ways of trying to cope with this problem. Some favour the "mopping up" method, adding extra dabs of powder from time to time; but the final result, and to confess, is rather puddingy.

Then there is the "fresh start" technique, which involves disapparing for lengthy method, and involves disapparing for lengthy method and to confess.

Powder Case

Cake make-up now comes in several different types. There is the powder cake, which gives a very light make-up. This is a special blend of powder and cream to be applied all in one. The puff is rubbed on the make-up quite easily without clogging. Then there is the cake makeup, which is applied with a small, damp spenge, very easy to use, and beautifully smooth if the sponge is just damp enough with-bet being wet. The advantage of this make-up is that it needs no powder at first and lasts very well. Enter, a little powder dust-ed over will make it perfect

And lastly, there is the new quick make-up in stick form which needs no sponge;

The thought that their allocation of India trade formerly in German hands was too small. The Dutch lines then initiated a rate cutting rivairy.

The "war" ended with ar agreement by which the rate of freight charges was restored to the level operating before the "war" began.

Mr. M. A. Master, General Manager of the Scindla Steamship Company, said in London at that time that Indian shipping lines had had to give away a large portion, of the trade from their own country to bring about the settlement.

The proposal for a 25 per cent surcharge on freight rates to Bombay was submitted to this week's conference from Bombay, according to a Bombay report on Wednesday.—Reuter.

COAL RATIONING AUSTRALIA

Sydney, June 17. Due to a threatened coal strike the New South Wales Sir Stafford had in mind but pre-Joint Coal Board announce drastic rationing which cut railway services, electricity and gas supplies in half.

Rationing will start at 'midnight on Saturday and continue indefinitely. It will cut deeply into the steel industry and allow general industry only one-quarter of its normal coal consumption .-United Press.

(By FREDDY MILLS)

Britain looks like having a heavyweight champion of the world this year. That's fine, except that the fly in the cintment is that it won't be me. Too bad. I had really set my heart on it, you know, but Bruce Woodcock's right-hand dig kyboshed my hopes at White City, London, on Thursday night.

"Poor old Freddy, Good old Bruce," the fans are saying as fighters' fortunes change with fickleness no other game can match. Well, can tell them that, much as I appreciate all their kind words to me, I'm happy to know that there's a hundred per cent champion to keep the old country's flag flying in world boxing affairs. Make no mistake about it, Bruce is just that. Deep inside me, ever since our first meeting three years ago, I've always had a healthy respect for his right hand. Right now I know that even at that I had made the same mistake as a lot of other people in under-estimating its power. He had everything at stakethe three titles he held, a world championship fight, round the corner. If you ask me that was appermost in his mind when he cracked me on the chin with a of its power. So much so, that I peach of a right in the very first | felt more inclined to meet them | bitions, were back of that one punch. If they weren't, heaven help the man who meets him when he really feels that way, because it was the hardest wallop I ever stopped in my life. Baksi beited me, and Lesnevich | was kidding me. He shook off any isn't actually a slouch when it comes to clean, concise hitting, but there wasn't the "boddy" behind any of their blows that the new Woodcock packs into his.

A New Woodcock

It is a new Woodcock, you know, I really think he was a man and a half compared to our previous set-to. And no one can give away 20 pounds, as I was trying to do, to a man and a half. He hit me so often, on the chin, on the neck, with crushing punches under the heart, that there how, I didn't duck quickly enough. were times when I was wondering what had gone wrong with

I may not have been the Freddy Mills who licked Lesnevich for the world title. Perhaps I didn't box so well, or punch so hard. But I gave him everything I had, and it wasn't enough. Bruce's nose, cunning like a tap for threequarters of the fight, was proof of the accuracy of my blows, but, fit as I was, I just couldn't match his fine condition and his supreme cenfidence.

That's a paint, I had most of the psychological advantages. Even of the weigh-in, when, with ne thought in mind but to relieve the nervous tension which was casting a gloom over the assembled company, I burst into song to sort out the damage. A fighter with "There's no business like feels pretty sore just after a fight, ther my seemingly carefree manner might have knocked Bruce's merale for a loop, but I never had illusions about that in the

BRADBURY SAVES CCC FROM DEFEAT AT HANDS OF IRC IN FIRST DIVISION BOWLS GAME

Constitution of the second section of the sect

Craigengawer Cricket Club, leaders in the First Division of the Lawn Bowls League, almost met their Waterlae yesterday when they visited Indian Recreation Club at Sookunpoo.

It was only the brilliant display and magnificent leadership of Bradbury which saved the day for Craigengower, who scraped home to a narrow two shot victory over the Indians, who played a rousing game. The final score was 57-55 in favour of Craigengower.

Another exciting tussle was t seen at Austin Road, where Kowloon Bowling Green Club feat. beat the Kowloon Dock Club 61,52 in the only other First Division game played.

In the Second Division, Club position at the top of the League Table when they beat Craigenkower Cricket Club at Happy Valley by five points.

Kowloon Bowling Green Club, who, entertained Kawloon Cricket Club in a Second Division game at Austin Road, beat their opponents by 69 shots to 55, while Filipino Club, playing at home, went down to Indian Recreation Club, the final score being 57-43. The only game played in the Third Division was that between the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and Prison Officers Club, which resulted in a win for KBGC by 64 shots to 55.

The First Division game between Kowloon Cricket Club and Police Recreation Club was postponed, as were also the Third Division games Kowloon Cricket Club versus Police Recreation Club and Club de Recreto versus Kowloon Dock Club.

FIRST DIVISION

IRC—CCC

An exciting finish marked the First Division Lawn Bowls game between Craigetigewer Cricket Club and Indian Recreation Club lat Sonkunpoo, the Valley team snatching a victory by two shots although losing on two rinks. The final score was 57-55.

Craigengower's victory was, without doubt, due to the brilliant Jendership of veteran Bradbury, who played a sterling game throughout and extricated his feam from an awkward position.

After two rinks had finished in favour of the Indians, Bradbury f and Minu had three more heads to play. The Indians were then leading by three shots, but Bradbury and his merry men soon evened the score.

The second last head found the Indians lying a shot when the elskips went down to roll. With his Clost wood, Bradbury drew first] be decided.

Cheong Shines As EAA Sweeps Swimming Meet

(By KIMBERLEY)

Eastern Athletic Association's youthful swim pride Cheong Kin-man, spotlighted the Eastern-VRC meet last night when he dethroned Tony Lopes in the 100 yards back-stroke swim, winning in 70 seconds flat-1.6 seconds outside the record—and beating Sonny Monteiro in the 220 in the excellent time of two minutes 29.6 seconds to cause one of the biggest upsets in years.

VRC suffered badly last night. Eastern swept the board clean in all five inter-member events to clinch the meet with 19 points to VRC's 8, then went on to beat their hosts in the water-pole by six goals to one.
